THE LATE TRAGEDY.

Startling News by Telegraph. The news by telegraph is of the mos startling and important character, and leaves scarcely a hope of a peaceable termination of our difficulties. The madness and obstinacy of fanaticism has left the Cotton States but one alternative-immediate and decisive action or submission.

They have chosen the former. The Arsenal at Mobile, with a vast amount of arms and munitions of war, has been taken possession of by the State of Alabama. And it is reported that Fort Morgan is also in possession of the State authorities.

The Arsenal at Savannah, Georgia, is in possession of the State, and the Revenue Cutter at that station has been taken possession of. It is believed at Washington that all the "pictures" serve well to impress both the story and the lesson on the minds of those for whom the book is designed.

"Studies from Life," a series of sketches by the author of "John Halifax, gentleman," and other well-known popular works, is an attractive looking volume, and from a cursory examination we should judge an interesting one.

"Herodetus" in two volumes forms part of a series of Greek and Latin Texts now being issued by the Harpers. The above are all for sale by John P.

The above are all for sale by John P. Morton, 459 Main street.

"Helper's Impending Crisis Dissected" is the title of a volume recently issued by J. T. LLOYD, Philadelphia. It is from the pen of Samuel W. Wolfe, a Virginian, and seems to be a very thorough refutation of the application and a complete expension. of the sophistries, and a complete exposition of the falsehoods, of the infamous book written by Helper, and distributed, with the indorsement of the leading Black Republican politicians, throughout the country in the last canvass. Mr. J. D. SEATON is agent for the sale of this work in Kentucky, and wants agents to sell it in all the counties. His headquar-ters are at Crump's, Fourth street. "Tanner's Louisville Directory for 1861, Great pains have been taken to make this work as complete as possible, and in full-ness of details and accuracy of statement it will, we believe, more than sustain the character established by the first volume compiled by the same gentleman, which was considered the best of the kind ever issued in Louisville. Cross-examined—Walker asked me to go to the country; I said I could not go; he answered that it made no difference; Here Walker was at rollcafl Monday night; I watch on the wharf; Walker was watching up town on that night.

Alexander Cross sworm—Am a police officer in the Second Ward; I arrested Ben Lountz on the corner of Market and Preston streets Wednesday; searched him, but found no weapons on him; the shot gun was loaded with large buck shot, ten being in each barrel; there were fifteen of the same kind in the musket. (These are the same guns that were found at Lountz's house by the officers.)

Cross-examined—Lountzasked me to go to a grocery with him; I did so, and he bought some articles and sent them home. Col. Bain drew the loads out of the guns.

Jas. Kirkpatrick sworn—On Monday last I met Here Walker, and he asked me where my big pistol was; I told him that it was at home; he said he would meet me at night, and go with me and get it; myself and Antle went to my house to supper, and Walker came in; he cat supper with me; I loaned Here Walker my large double-barrelled pistol; I live on Fifth street, between Breckinridge and Kentucky; I got my pistol from Walker's house.

Its barbarities are equaled alone by the vengeance of the savage, or the revolting crimes of All who read the facts as dethe Sepoys. veloped in the evidence will be thrilled with horror. Yesterday the Police Court room was crowded with those who were anxious to hear, the evidence. Here Walker, James Walker, Jeff Rogers, Ben Lounz Jr., and Daniel Brown were there presented as the perpetrators of the dark Clements constituted the Court, and after a patient hearing committed all but Brown Forts and Arsenals in the Cotton States to answer the charge of murder. The lat ter was discharged, the evidence not con necting him with the affair. The evidence of the wives of the murdered men was deeply affecting. Here is the TESTIMONY.

Dr. Buchanan sworn—Am Coroner of Jeffersen county, and, acting in that capacity, I held inquests on the bodies of William, Jesse and Russell Hill on Monday last; went to the house of William Hill and held an inquest on his body first; found him lying dead on the floor with several mortal wounds on his person inflicted from gun-shots; the first wound on William to which my attention was attracted was a very large hole on the right hip, evidently made by several balls; the large bone of the hip and the thigh bone were shattered to pieces; the hole was large enough to put two fingers in and draw out pieces of the bone; the load appeared to have lodged in the stomach near the heart; there was another wound in the breast, the ball appearing to have gone directly in; there was also a wound in the neck; any of the wounds would cause death; the hand of William was also riddled with balls.

The hext inquest was on the body of Jesse; found him lying near the door on his back with several wounds in his body and neck, and several cuts on the throat with a large knife; his hand was also much riddled. The first wound I examined on the body of Jesse was in the center of the back were four balls passed; a half dollar would cover the four; he also had a gun-shot wound in the neck; there were also four stabs in the neck; both of these bodies were at the house of William Hill.

The next inquest was held on Russell Hill, at his residence, some two and a half these bodies were at the house of William Hill.

The next inquest was held on Russell Hill, at his residence, some two and a half miles from the above. Found Russell Hill lying dead in the closet; the back portion of his head had been shot by several balls, and the entire skull was shattered; he was also shot in the thigh; the wound in the head must have caused instant death; (Dr. Buchanan produced seven balls which fell from the bodies of the deceased.) William and Jesse lived five miles from the city on the property of Mr. Crutchfield, on the Nashville Railroad, and the house of Russell Hill was about two and a half milos turther on.

Mrs. Russell Hill sworn—Am the widow of Russell Hill, deceased; was in the house at the time Russell was shot. On the night that Russell Hill was killed, the five acat the time Russell was shot. On the night that Russell Hill was killed, the five accused, with two others, came to my house; Jim Walker gave my little boy five cents, and told him to hush; they came to my house about 2 o'clock in the morning; they came to my house and broke the doer open; I got out of bed with my child; one of the party shot through the door, the ball just missing me; Russell them went into the closet; the accused then came up stairs where I was; asked where my husband was; I said that he had left; the accused then eam to the common them went into the room where my husband was and shot him; went to a neighbor's for assistance, but they were afraid to come; I did not return until morning, when I found my husband lying dead in the closet, where he was shot.

Cross-examined—The killing took place about 2 o'clock Monday morning; had been abed for some time; the knocking at the door woke us up; got up to go to the door; when some one shot through the door; the door was closed but not locked. The parties burst the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room into which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room into which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room into which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room into which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room into which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room the which the door open; shot before the door was opened; was sleeping in the room opensation with me. They said that they were on a New Year's spree, and weresorry that they had interrupted me. Ben Lountz had on a green overcoat; were in my house about twenty minutes. They went all over

Cross-exambed—Can identify only Jeif Rodgers and Here Walker; saw them in this room yesterday; never saw them before that night. There was a good fire burning in the room, which gave light enough for me to see. It was about two hours before day when they came; my sister and brother in-law were there at the time; the girl is about sixteen years old, and the boy about seventeen years of age. There is but one room in the house; there is two doors to the room, My bed was near the fire-place, the head towards the fire; a sheet was hanging at the foot of the bed; Jesse was shot first; they shot about four times; was much frightened; have seen Jim Walker before; Here Walker went to the foot of the bed; noticed him particularly. I was sitting up in the bed; my hisband was lying down; at first I thought it was Jim Walker; never saw Jeff Rodgers before; other men were outside of the house, but cannot say who they were.

with Walker some five or sixtmonths; have seen his pistol often; the one found on the road referred to above, is very much like Herc Walker's, but could not swear that it was Herc's.

John J. Felker sworn—The Colt's naval revolver exhibited in the court is like one that he had; he gave it to his son Monday night.

Thomas Selvage sworn—Do not remember having seen Herc Walker on Monday or Monday night; made no engagement to go to the country with him.

Harriet Hemming sworn—I live on Ninth street, between Main and Market; on Monday night I was passing Court Place and saw Herc Walker, between 7 and 8 o'clock, with a double-barrel shot-gun in his hand; he went out Fifth street.

Cross-examined—My name is Harriet Hemming; I live on Ninth street; was going through Court Place Monday night; was going on Fourth street from home; I am sure that it was Herc Walker, he had been pointed out to me before; no one was with me at the time; Here was slone; he went out Fifth street.

R. M. Moore sworn—I assisted in making the arrest of Daniel Brown; he came to John Felker's on Tuesday night talking agreat deal about the fight in the country, saying that he was smart enough to clear himself before coming into town, and that led to his arrest; the pistol found on the road by a witness, looks like Herc Walker's; cannot say for certain that it is Walker's.

Cross-examined—Brown was drunk when he came to Felker's; he seemed to be increased in the case by his conversation; brown told Moore that he was looking for Herc Walker.

Milton Curry sworn—I am a policeman in this city; have seen Herc Walker's pistols; the one found on the railroad is like Walker's; cannot say that it is his.

George Felker sworn—Am the son of John Felker, do no know the naval revolver exhibited in court; I loaned one like it othere Walker, Jeff Rodges, and Ben Lountz were ali at Jim Walker's when I left; John Read, Sam Mitchell, and Country Sam were also at the shanty; Lountzame home about daylight; when he came I left.

As to the former, the case of Nineveh, as related in the text, shows that even heathen may escape judgments by timely repentance. As to to the latter, the history of Israel is full of instruction. When the army of Sennacharib lay at the gates of Jerusalem, Hezekiah "rent his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the House of the Lord," and the Lord delivered him. If God promised Abraham to spare Sodom for the sake of ten righteous, will He not spare this guilty land because of His people that dwell in it? And can His people look upon it in any other light than as the smiting of a Father's hand?

ics discharged from the post on Friday last. We quote:

The force now remaining in Fort Sumter consists of about one hundred and thirty men, fifty of whom are laborers, and the rest are troops belonging to the artillery branch of the United States service. These latter are sufficient to man about one-half the guns of the fort, supposing the guns were all mounted. Fortunately, however, this is far from being the ease. Out of seventy-five pieces of heavy ordnance now in the fort only eleven are fully mounted. These are all casement guns in the lower tier, and include the nine guns of that face of the fortress fronting towards Sullivan's Island. Two more of these casement guns were nearly mounted on Friday evening, but the work of getting them in position is necessarily slow and tedious, with the force now at work, it is impossible to mount more than three guns per day at the utmost. The heaviest guns, too, which are the ten inch Columbiads, have yet to be mounted. One of the casement guns at one of the angles of the walls has been placed in position so as to cover Castle Pinckney. The garrison were on Friday evening getting ready to mount some of the casement guns at one of the angles of the walls has been placed in position so not cover Castle Pinckney. The garrison were on Friday evening getting ready to mount some of the casement guns at one of the casement guns on the south side of the walls.

Besides these heavy pieces, four of the lighter barbette guns are mounted upon the ramparts, pointing towards Morris' Island. These are so arranged upon pivot carriages as to sweep around the whole horizon. The magazine of the fortress is well stocked with an immense quantity of grape, canister and shells, and about seven hundred barrels of powder. All the small arms and stores of Fort Moultrie have been transferred with the garrison, and there is a sufficient accumulation of provisions to last, in case of necessity, for six months at least. Four large cisterns contain an ample supply of fresh water, but it is now well

TIONS.

The damage at Fort Moultrle, says the Courier, though as yet unrepaired, is neither so extensive nor so irremediable as was at first thought. Under command of Major Anderson, the work was strengthened in a Anderson, the work was strengthened in a truly wonderful manner, though many parts of it were unfinished at the time of the evacuation. However, this is all so much lavor saved the South Carolina troops, and under the energetic superintendence of Col. Quinn, engineer-in Chief, and his efficient corps of Aids, chosen principally from the Washington Artillery, the work commenced is being busily pushed forward to completion. A large force of laborers have been put to work, and in a very short time everything will be set in order.

ed forward to completion. A large force of laborers have been put to work, and in a very short time everything will be set in order.

Contrary to expectation, none of the guns of the fort are materially injured. Those that were spiked were rendered uscless for the time being only. The instruments used to stop up the touch holes were simply wrought nails, most of which have already been taken out. None of the guns were injured by the application of tar either inside or outside—and the way the impression got abroad that this substance has been used by the evacuating party was from the charred appearance of the tar always used as coating to protect the guns from the weather after it was burned. Carriages for the heavy eight inch Columbiads, bearing on Fort Sunter, which were destroyed by fire on the night of evacuation, are being reconstructed with all possible dispatch in this city. The from work of the old guns is capable of being used again, so that, after all, not much time will be lost.

In descring the fort, military men say Major Anderson did as little harm to the works as it was possible for him to do. He might have blown up the work, or might have injured it to such a degree that it would have been rendered worthless even after a year's labor had been spent in repairing it. As it now is, to-morrow night will see it almost as strongly fortified as it was on the 26th.

In relation to other points of defense in the harbor, a great deal has been said on the street, and since the affair at Fort Sunter, there has evidently been a disposition to grumble because more active steps have not been taken in throwing up breastworks and batteries on allavailable points. Those who consider the subject, however, will see that until theact of evacuating Moultrie and occupancy of Sunter was consummated, there was a mutual agreement between South Carolina and the Federal Government, which bound us in honor to take no active warlike steps. Secretary Floyd's Resignation. Following is the correspondence previously alluded to as having passed between Secretary FLOYd and the President on the occasion of the resignation of the former: SECRETARY FLOYD TO THE PRESIDENT.

WAR DEPARTMENT, Dec. 29, 1860. SIR; On the morning of the 27th inst. I read the following paper to you in the presence of the Cabinet:

presence of the Cabinet:

Coensel Chamber, Ex. Mansion.

Sir: It is evident new from the action of the Commander of Fort Modritie, that the solemn pledges of the Government have been violated by Major Andreason.—In my judgment but one remedy is now left us by which to vindicate our honor and prevent civil war. It is in vain now to hope for confidence on the part of the people of South Carolina in any further piedges as to the action of the military. One remedy is left, and that is to withdraw the garrison from the harbor of Charleston altogether. I hope the President will allow me to make that order at once. This order, in my judgment, can alone prevent bloodshed and civil war.

Secretary of War.

I then considered the honor of the Administration pledged to maintain the troops in the position they occupied, for such had been the assurance given to the gentlemen of South Carolina who had a right to speak for her. South Carolina, on the other hand, gave reciprocal pledges that no force should be brought by them against the troops or against the property of the United States. The sole object of both parties in these reciprocal pledges was to prevent a collision and the effusion of blood, in the hope that some means might be found for a peaceful accommodation of the existing troubles, the two Houses of Congress having both raised Committees looking to that object. Thus affairs stood until the action of Maj. Anderson, taken unfortunately white the Commissioners were on their way to this Capital on a peaceful mission looking to the avoidance of bloodshed, has complicated matters in the existing matmer.—Our refusal or even dealy to Place affairs back as they stood under our agreement, invites a collision and Plust inevitably inaugurate civil war. I cannot consent to be the agent of such calamity. I deeply regret Plus leed myself under the necessary of tendering to you my resignation as Secretary of War, because I can no longer hold it under my convictions of patriotism nor with honor, subject as I am to a violation of solemn pledges and plighted faith. With the highest personal regards.

The arguments for submission to the North have gone through so many phases that it is difficult to follow them. We sub-join a summary of the leading ones in the order they have been brought forward, to arge the South to put on the halter: 1st. We have been urged upon the ground "that it wouldn't choke.

2d. If it should choke a little we "could stand it for four years." 3d. That those who held the other en

we could resist better with it on than with 6th. We should submit to the halter to show our "love of liberty" and of a "free

Our hearts are prepared to leap into our mouths, and swell the acclamation, "The Union, now and forever, one and indivisible!"—[Louisville Journal.
"Liberly and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable!"—[Daniel Webster.

The South adopts the latter motto, wishing to retain the "Liberty," and that "in-separable" from "Union." Without it she would prefer divisible to "indivisible." As an offset to the badges of seces-cion, it is proposed in some quarters to adopt as a badge of submission, the costame of 1776. In politics as in religion, when the true spirit is gone, men are prone to seek refuge in the outward forms.

When it (labor) moves and speaks, when it (1890r) moves and speaks, the place-hunter and trading politician must give way, and be compelled to cringe deferentially to the real sovereigns, or give up all fature loops of wheelling "the dear people."—[Louisville Journal. surpose should be avowed, and a positive programme of action resolved upon. Should othing be agreed upon by Congress as a basis of settlement before the border House of Representatives, Washington, Dec. 25, 1860. Washington, Dec. 25, 1860.
Fellow-Citizens: The all-absorbing issues, now engrossing public attention, will furnish anapology for this communication.
Were I now indifferent to the circumstances surrounding our country, and unmindful of the duties I owe to that country and to you, I would be unworthy of the high confidence you have reposed in me, In no spirit of the partisan do I address you. The events now transpiring at the Federal Capitol are too momentous to be thus met, considered, and acted upon. Our Government, formed by the wisest and best men who ever laid the foundation of an empire, is now tottering to its fall. One State has already withdrawn from the Federal Union. Before the 4th day of March next others will follow—probably the States of Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Texas. The border Slave States will thus be separated from their sister Slave States of the South. The very next advance in causes, now operating throughout the country, may bring us face to face with revolution, and all the horrors of a long and bloody war. What position, then, will the people of Kentucky take—what policy will they adopt? While these mighty events are transpiring around us, Kentucky cannot remain passive. She cannot fold her arms and be swept on, or overwhelmed by these events. She cannot avoid them if FELLOW-CITIZENS: The all-absorbing is-nes, now engrossing public attention, will are transpiring around us, Kentucky cannot remain passive. She cannot fold her arms and be swept on, or overwhelmed by these events. She cannot avoid them if she would. She must meet them, and it becomes her to meet them with a frankness and boldness worthy of her past character and fame. In days gone by she has stood by the Union with a martyr's devotion. She has struggled for it, and suffered for it. Let her now arouse herself to the mighty responsibilities resting upon her. She cannot, in justice to herself, now stand still and refuse to be an actor in these events. No state in the Confederacy is more interested than she in their final termination. If she determines to stand still, and declines to assume any firm and commanding position, the occasion may pass forever when her voice may be heard or heeded by either section. Should such be the result brought upon her by a hesitating policy, it may cost her the blood of thousands of her best and bravest sons. Occupying the geographical position she does, her territory, in the event of a conflict between the Federal Government and the seceding States, may become the battleground of the contending powers. When that time comes, should she now refuse to act, the moral of her position will be lost: her counsels would not then be regarded by either party; for "where revolution commences, argument ends."

In my judgment, the first and most vital question to be determined by her is this—purpose should be avowed, and a positive programme of action resolved upon. Should nothing be agreed upon by Congress as a basis of settlement before the border slave States shall thus assemble in council, my judgment is that these States, when thus assembled, should frame such guarantees as the exigency of the occasion demands, in the nature of amendments to the Constitution, and in the proper way submit them to the people of the Northern States for their approval or rejection. Let these be the basis of a reconstruction of the Government, and if rejected, then let them act as becomes a people who have exhausted the last effort at reconciliation, and who have been forbearing and long suffering under wrong and oppression. Having thus acted, they may appeal to the God of justice, and the judgment of all men in vindication of their patriotism, their truth and integrity of purpose.

The South can no longer afford to have this slavery question an open question. Its continuous agitation will overwhelm her, will bring ruin and devastation upon her.

A knowledge on the part of the slaves that a mighty and powerful political organization of men in the Free States is banded togther, and acting for the overthrow of the institution and for their deliverance, will demoralize the institution of slavery in the States where it exists, will make the slave himself restless and impatient; and thus, the one acting and reacting upon the other, by all the appliances of incendiary documents scattered through the Slave States, the operations of the underground railroad, and raids and invasions by such desperadoes as John Brown and Montgomery, with all the other nameless curses which must grow out of this endless agitation, will hasten and make certain the final catastrophe. Hence, I repeat, that we should now insist upon a square and final settlement of this question they live, move, and have content with nothing less. The moment this is done, the Republican party of the North is demoralized, for upon this question at this time, in my est moment. In this council a definit

iea." In that event the instincts of self-preserva-tion and manhood, on the part of the people of the Southern States, will work a result which Northern fanaticism, madness and wrong have failed to accomplish from the foundations of the Government up to this time. This result may involve consequences painful to the heart of every true patriot in the land; but this reflection will, to some extent, mitigate this pain, when we know and feel that the guildy cannot escape the misfortunes they seek to bring upon others—her counsels would not then be regarded by either party; for "where revolution commences, argument ends."

In my judgment, the first and most vital question to be determined by her is this—shall force be used by the Federal authorities to coerce the secoding States? This proposition will be precipitated upon the National Congress in a few days at farthest, when the commissioners from the seceding States shall present themselves at the Federal Capitol to treat with this Government as independent powers. The President will then, no doubt, refer the whole subject to that body in a special message. In that event, the question must be met and acted upon; and the manner in which it is determined, in my judgment, will settle, for weal or woe, the destiny of the Federal Union, not only for the present, but in all time to come. Wisdom, forbarance, and fortitude, may save the Republic—force or violence will make certain its fall. What, then, will be the position of Kentucky upon this vital question? I know the manly impulses of her brave and partiotic sons. Will she evade it? She will not evade it; she will plant herself where honor, justice, and sympathy demand she should stand. Thus influenced and thus acting, she will be leare that neither justice, wisdom, nor necessity demand the employment of force, and that she will resist its exercise to the death. Her position, then, should be, and will be, that of an armed neutral, firmly and immovably resolved that a bloody and perhaps exterminating war shall not be lnaugurated by a premature and unnecessary collision between the contending parties. The first drop of blood shed upon Southern soil would be the rallying cry which would gather to one common standard a united South. The first gun fired would be the knell of the Union. The cause of a people, as they avow, struggling for their constitutional rights, and seeking to promisfortunes they seek to bring upon others—

"The evil that men do lives after them."

Fellow-citizens, the questions to which I have thus referred are, in my judgment, vital and fundamental. They cover the whole ground of present issues. They seek to avoid the calamities of a long and bloody war. They have every chance for a reconstruction of the Government by proper and necessary amendments to the Constitution; and, in the event every effort at a reconstruction should fail, and the terrible alternative should be forced on us to sever our relations with the Northern States, then let this be done in peace. Let not the Union our fathers made be dissolved in the blood of their children.

If, in the end, a permanent separation of the States shall be the result, those who may live in after times to pronounce judgment upon us and our actions as a people, will be puzzled to comprehend how a Government like ours—not decayed by age; not subverted by ambition; not conquered by a foreign nation; that has evinced through all its past history such elements of power, vitality, and progress—could thus be overthrown in the middle of the 19th century, and that, too, by a generation only two degrees removed from that revolutionary period, which gave to the world a Washington, a Hancock, a Hamilton, a Henry, a Adams, a Jefferson, and a Madison. As they gaze upon the ruins of this once proud Capitol, and behold its crumbling arches and broken columns, and remember that it was here upon this spot where a Clay, a Webster, and a Calhoun gave to the world the nighty and thrilling productions of their genius and patriotism, which will consecrate and make classic throughout all time to come the age in which they lived, what will be their verdict upon the virtue and intelligence of the American people?

It will be that here, fanaticism, the legitimate of spring of the fallen Lucifer, the bane of all free governments, the enemy of all peace and concord amongst men, the seducer of every public virtue, the parent of every sin, and the betr "The evil that men do lives after them." be the knell of the Union. The cause of a people, as they avow, struggling for their constitutional rights, and seeking to protect themselves, their property, their wives, their children, their all worth living for or worth dying for, from the spoliations of the incendiary, and the plunders of the assassin and the robber, would that moment become a common cause. Upon the issues now made up between the citizens of the slaveholding States and the anti-slavery party of the Free the issues now made up between the citizens of the slaveholding States and the anti-slavery party of the Free States, the people of the Southern States cannot afford to be divided. Their destiny and interest, as involved in these issues, are one and inseparable, hence they must stand or fail together. These issues, as thus made up, strike not only at the moral, social, and political equality of the fifteen Southern States in this Confederacy, but they strike at their rights of property in $4,000,000 worth of slaves; and above all, and worse than all, they involve the security of every hearthstone in the South from the attacks of the incendiary and the horrors of a revolution. Hence such a cause, pregnant with interests so vital to them, will enlist the sympathy of every manly son of the Scath of all parties, and no powers of the State of Federal Governwhen our fathers formed our present Union, they hoped and believed that it would endure while government existed among men. They laid its foundations deep and broad in the affections, intelligence and unbile vitue of the recolno powers of the State of Federal Govern no powers of the State of Federal Governments can restrain this sympathy, or their indignation or resistance, should this revolution thus be precipitated upon them by the exercise of force at this particular time. Should this not be prevented, the evil hour is already at hand when the clash of arms and the deep thunders of the cannon will close in an ocean of blood the last days of the American Union.

among men. They laid its foundations deep and broad in the affections, intelligence, and public virtue of the people.—
They threw around our liberty of person, our fire-side, our family altar, our liberty of conscience, and of speech and the press, a shield, as they believed, mightier than England's boasted Magna Charta—the shield of the American Constitution. They never dreamed that bigoiry and fanaticism would invade these sacred rights and pervert them from their high purposes of patriotism; they never dreamed that the Tempter would enter this Eden of our peace and happiness; that from the school room, the public press, the pulpit and the public forum, in phargaical phrase, he would extol aloud his self-rightconness; that to the poor abroad, who never asked, his doors were open to charity and his hand ready to give; but to the poor at home, who persisted at his gates and begged a crumb from his table, he gave the charity of a scoff, and turned him away an hunger and athirst.

Such is the charity of Northern Abolitionism—the charity of the "rich man" to the begging Lazarus dying at his gate. This Abolitionism, with its hypocritical cant, its blasphemous prayers, its mock charity, its infidelity and treasonable spirit has touched with its leprous hand the Constitution of the country, and that touch seems death. Its approach has been long and gradual, yet at last successful. It, to-day, in the language of Mr. Summer to the "Wide Awakes at Providence, proclaims," that after the 4th of March next "a new order of things will be inaugurated, and then will commonce the anti-slavery jubiles."

Fellow-citizens, the crisis now upon us seems death is the strist now upon us see the most fearful through which we have is already of hand when the clash of arms and the deep thunders of the cannon will close in an ocean of blood the last days of the American Union.

Whatever may be the final or ultimate action of Kentucky in the premises, it seems to me that her dearest interest can best be subserved and guarded by preventing the use of harsh or violent measures on the part of the Federal Government at this time against the seceding States.—
The sentiments of her people, I know, are still loyal to the Union of these States, provided her constitutional rights of equality can be maintained in it.—
But these sha will demand at all hazards. She is not for the mere empty forms of a Government "that keeps its promise to the ear and breaks it to the hope." She will not cling to the dead body of the Union when its spirit of justice, protection, and equality has fied; she will not yow allegiance to a Government not upheld and sustained by the justice and inviolability of a common Constitution and the ties of a Common brotherhood; she will not uphold a Government whose Constitution is to be overthrown and whose powers are to be perverted from those of protection to those of oppression by a crael, dominant, popular majority in the free States, organized and sustained upon the express grounds of hostility and hate to the people and the domestic institutions of fifteen States of the Confederacy. This unpopular majority is soon to be insingurated in all the high places of the Government.—
They are pledged by their public press, by their pulpits, by the declarations of their leading representative men, by their speaches in Congress and upon the hustings, "to place the Goyernment permanently upon the side of freedom," They stand pledged to use all the powers of the Federal Government to strike down the institution of slavery wherever it can be reached under the Constitution as construed by themselves. They propose to accomplish this by refusing to admit any more slave speakers, into the Federal Government to strike down the institution of slav

"a new order of things will be inaugurated, and then will commones the anti-slavery jubilee."

Fellow-citizens, the crisis now upon us is the most fearful through which we have ever been called to pass. If now we are true to ourselves, all may yet be well. If we now falter or quall before the storm, we are iost;—we have fallen to rise no more forever.

In our deliberations and final action, we should not underestimate our Federal Union. Next to the protection and maintenance of the inalienable rights of life, liberty, and property, the insurance of "domestic peace," which are the birth-rights of American citizens in every state and section, the Union is inestimable in value. If these can be protected—if the hand of the despoiler, upraised for their destruction, can be arrested, and the Union preserved in the spirit of justice and equality in which it was formed by our fathers, there is no manily heart upon the soil of Kentucky who would not cling to our "old banner of stars." On that "old banner" our fathers inscribed "justice, fraternity, and equality;" and if these time-honored emblems are now to be erased, and inspiritive, hade, and inequality written in their stead, that will not be the banner our fathers pledged "their lines, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" to uphold. It will be the banner of the constitution of our country, andour enjasement. If this wrong and unholy purpose is to be consumated, in God's name let it not be done while a single son of the South has a voice to raise, or an arm to defend. Constitution—is not the Union by which Kentucky has stood with such immovable devotion in days gone by.

The Union by which Kentucky has stood, and by which she will now stand, is a union of equality and fraternity—a union formed by a Constitution, held sacred and inviolate by a common public sentiment, North and South—a union where every son of the Republic, whether upon land or sea, whether from the North or South, whether of native or foreign birth, as he looks upon the flag of his country, will realize that its mighty shield of protection is around and about him guarding his every right of life, liberty and property. These are the birth-rights of the American citizen. The Government was made to protect, and not to destroy them. The flag of our country is the sign of our covenant, the emblem of our nationality, our justice and power. In this spirit let it be upheld, and our Union will never dissolve.

For such a union our fathers struggled, and by such a union Kentucky will stand forever. For such a union ske would now make one more sevenest and patriotic stand. She should madertake to so control events as to save every chance of a reconstruction of the Government, by amendments to the Constitution upon a basis that will guarantee security and protection to the people of the Southern States for their slave property, both in the States and Territories.

Kentucky, however, owes to herself end her people other high responsibilities which cannot be overlooked. Her interest, her sympathies, her destiny inseparably connect with her sister slave States of the South. Any other position will be death, shame, and dishonor upon her.—The bovrors of another St. Domingo would be tolerable compared with the degradation, miseries, and ruin that await her should she not repose for protection upon termethed of the States hereinbefore mamed, so as again to unite the dismembered parts, the great Republic of North America will kereaffer be all-of the South has a voice to raise, or an arm to defend.

When, I ask, in the history of the world, did a brave and manly people tamely surrender their free-born rights of life, libertyand property, the sanctity of their hearth stones, the safety of their families, the dignity of their manhood, as guaranteed by the Constitution of their country, to appease the hate, the madness and the rancor of a hostile section, holding to the doctrines of a "higher law regulating their conduct" than the Constitution they have sworp to support? By the doctrines of that "higher law" the tenure by which the Southern States hold their $4,000,000,000 worth of slave property is to dissolve as a myth in the air. The Constitution, before such a public sentiment, will perish, and our rights as editizens and our requality as States, under one common Government, will perish with it. This public sentiment must be arrested, it must be met, it must be resisted.

Kentucky must now take her position must be arrested, it must be need it must be resisted.

Kentucky must now take her position either to surrender her rights and her equality in the Federal Union, or firmly take her stand by these rights and this equality demanding additional constitutional guarantees for their observance and maintenance. By these algais and this equality I intend to stand to the last. No earthly power shall drive me from this position; and, were I to act otherwise, I should feel that I had betrayed you and dishonored myself. Every effort will be made to arrest the evil now upon us, and restore the Government to its original purposes of justice and equality.

I am ready to second eyery such effort. Here, in my place, I will stand by Kentucky and her fortunes through every perion is fall be willing to grant to other sections what is just, and shall be content to receive mothing less for my own. Upon the fair record of our gellant old Commenwealth there is no stand of disporting. Her patriotism has been tested upon the fair record of our gellant old Commenwealth there is no stand of disporting here is no stand of disporting the region of the nation. In the trying order! through which she is now about to pass, I have confidence that she will steadily and firmly pursue the right.

It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found in the following complaints:

the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood life disordered, there can be no lasting health.—Sooner or later something mu-tg ow wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or over-thrown.

Sarssparilla has, and deserves much, the reputation of accomplishing these ends. But the world has been egregiously deceived by preparations of the array became for it, but mos not all the virtue of sarsaparilla, or any thing else.

Burng late years the public have been misled by large bottles pretending to the concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contained for farsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contained for farsaparilla from the warding extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name two within we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistable by the ordinary run of rethink we have ground for believing it has in-ques which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to se-uure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the bottle.

for several reasons. As a matter of information, it is of interest. I have also done so, that they may be posted in new matters, while they are new. It is no virtue in us that leads us to adopt a theory after it has become popular; but it is, if we are not afraid to touch it fresh from the mine of truth, help to separate it from its impurities and make it practical. The man of progress takes advantage of new discoveries; he keeps, as it were, ahead of the tide, as it comes sweeping in, while the doggedly conservative stays back till the tide of progress rises to his neck, chin, mouth, nose, and drives him either to go ahead or be overwhelmed. Beside, I have been contingally asked in my tour for agricultural information, "What do you learn that is new? The article is called by a variety of names in this part of the country, such as ground, should be rich and well broken up. It ought to be of such a description as might be expected to produce a good crop of corn. It ought to be haid out in ridges about three feet apart. A shallow farrow run with a signal plow along the center of each ridge prepares the ground for the aced. The pods, which centain from one to three pease each, must be broken, and this peas planted in the drill, from one foot to eighteen inches apart, and covered with a hoce about one inch and a hair deep.—They ought to be plowed and heed three times during the season, to destroy the weeds and keep the ground loose. The peavine while growing sends up a perpendicular stem about a foot nigh; about this stem many others shoot out in all directions, and run about fifteen inches along the surface of the ground. These runners have joints about an inch and a hair deap into the ground about two inches deep; at the end of this root the peach of is farmed, and there comes to maturity. Some farmers cover these lateral vines with earth, while others leave them bare all the time. It is not greed which is the better mode. When ripe, one hunch of vines will have from age to two quarts of peas. Some planters callifying them in hills like corn, but I prefer drills. One acre will readgee from thirty-five to fifty bushels of peas, which usually sell at one dollar a bushel in our markets. NORMAN has removed to has house emerly occupied by Dr. M. [CONCLUBED.]

Medical science was brought to bear on the question. Chalk or carbonate of lime, it is known, will correct acidity of the stomach; yet it was found that pulverized marble, which is chemically the same, would not do this. James' powders, composed of equal parts of antimony and phosphate of lime, were used successfully by the East India Company as a medicine for the soldiers. Dr. James prepared them, and he only knew their composition. After a time, it was urged that he should give the secret to the world, on the ground of philanthropy. He did so. Other companies went hato the manufacture of them, and secured the contract to supply the army. The medicine made by them was found to fail. The East India Company complained of adulteration, and instituted a suit. Chemists were employed to make analysis of the medicines, and their composition was found to be the same as that of Dr. James. What could make the difference? Testimony revealed the fact that Dr. James made his powder from bone phosphate, while the other company made their's from the mineral phosphate. The James' powder now in use, is made principally from mineral phosphate, and medicalem men in New York had informed him that it had none of its former efficacy, though they could not tell why. These, together with other facts, led him to the conclusion that the same matter needs to be in a different condition, (not chemically,) for a high order of plants, from what it is for a low order, and that it is the office of plants of a low order and that it is the office of plants of a low order, and that it is the office of plants of a low order to bring matter up to a condition in which those of a higher order may use it. Hence, the doctrine of "progressive primaries." Like all other new ideas, its truth must be tested by rigid experiment. Nor will it do for scientific men to sit in judgment upon it, simply from their "knowledge of chemistry." Chemistry, as now understood, will never solve the question. If t It cures Sores about the nose and mouth by a fer It cures the Barber's Itch without fall. ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.—TESTIMONIAL.—"T. ALLOOCK & CO., No. 226 Canal-st, New York, 29th Nov., 1859.—Gentlemen: I lately suffered severely from a weakness in my back, occasioned by suddenly over-exerting myself. Having heard your Plasters much recommended for cases of this kind, I procured one, and the result was all that I could desire. A single plaster cured me in a week.

plants must first do this, then a still higher class of plants, and so on. We see, also, why, in an old field, which has become exhausted of its progressed pabulum, ct once throws up mosses, lichens, and weeds, and plants of a low organization.

But the question to the farmer after all is, "What is the value of this discovery to me?" I answer, first, if you purchese fertilizers, it at once enables you to discriminate between the good and the bad. If you wanted phosphates, it would direct you to such marl deposits as were of animal origin, instead of those of mineral, or bones of animals to the Estramadura or Dover rocks. If your soll has become exhausted, it shows us the means by which it may be brought back to a good degree of richness at the least expense of time and money. On this subject, we grope in the dark, to a great extent. If our meadows refuse to grow grass after we have cropped them for a series of years, we are apt to think that they need only to be broken up, cropped to wheat, oats, or corn for a year or two, and then seeded down again; wherees, if this theory be true, we should seed them to some crop of a lower organization than the one which grew before, that it may progress the abundance of macrial already at hand to a condition in which grass, oats, etc., may use it. It girss us also the true theory of rotation of crops. If we were to raise two successive crops of wheat on the same field, they might exhaust all the progressed pabulum fitted for wheat; whereas, if we alternate wheat and clover, we might with the clover fit matter enough in one year for acrop of wheat the next, and so on. It also shows us where we may get our imported manures, without injury from the country from which we import them. It is very foolish for England to take the bones and potash recessary to keep up their yield of wheat at thirty bushels per acre, when it reduces ours to ten; we need them ourselves. It might be of advantage to her, if she ever wished to recanquer us, first, to reduce the capacity of our soil, and was all that I could desire. A single plaster cured me in a week.

Yours respectfully, J. G. BRIGGS.

Proprietor of the Brandreth House, New York.

There is nothing equal in the way of a Plaster, to the Porous Plaster of Mr. ALLOOKE, Everything is pleasant about them. They are the Plaster of the day, and a fit type of our present advancement in science and art. In Asthma, Cough, Kidney Affections, and local deep seated pains, they afford permanent relief; and for weak backs, pains in the side, stitches, and spasmodic pains generally, they are unsurpassed for the benefits they impart. NOTICE. For fine Champagne Wines: For fine Old Port, Madeira and Sherry Wines: For fine Old Cognac Brandies; For fine Old Bourbon county Whisky;

For fine Old Peach and Apple Brandy; what she would gain we should lose, and this would be no real gain to the world as a whole. But there is an almost inexhaustible supply of these very materials in uncivilized and uncultivated countries, of no use there; these we may take, and no harm is done.

The pampas of South America contain the bones of wild cattle, slaughtered or otherwise destroyed there, of no use to them, but of great use to us. So do the gano islands, and so do our own forests and swamps. We might remove them all, and the great variety of plants which grow there, would continually be fitting farther supplies so as to restore the balance. It will also teach us the relation of chemistry to agriculture. Chemists have about given up that they cannot, by analyzing a soil, tell its value or its needs. This tells us why. They analyze the soil and find abundance of potash, lime, etc., and suppose it needs no more; but if these are unprogressed, it needs to have as much in proper condition added to it, as if it contained none. There is little difference between an analysis of the soils of the Sciota Go to HART & CLARK'S. No. 219 Third street, between Main and Market, Methodist Book Rooms proper condition added to it, as if it contained none. There is little difference batween an snalysis of the soils of the Sciota Bottoms and the soils of New England, and yet the former is very much more productive. Why? The former is made of the debris of plants and animals of a high order; the latter is made of the debris of grantite and other rocks, with less of the debris of animal or vegetable life. It also puts a quietus on the theories of Political Economists, who insist that if the earth should ever be densely populated, as it would be if war, famine and pestilence did not prematurely cut off a great number before they had fulfilled their deatiny, the earth would not support them for if all the matter on the surface of the earth should become progressed to a high degree, as it may in time by proper system of husbandry, its product reness could be increased to any desirable extent.

I have now given to the readers of the Farmer, a brief view of the doctrine of "progressive primaries," I have done so for several crasons. As a matter of information, it is of interest. I have also done so, that they may be posted in new matters, while they are new. It is no witnest a post of the progressive primaries, while they are new. It is no witnest as the proper of the progressive primaries, while they are new. It is no witnest as the progressive primaries, while they are new. going down in water two feet over the main deck.

The James Montgomery left this port last Saturday evening with rather a light trip, including pork, lard, and tobacco, and 250 head of sheep. She is owned by Capt. Montgomery, Capt. Frank Carter, and others of this city, and, we believe, was only partially insured. She was nearly five years old. She had a full load, including considerable treight shipped at Evansville. The sheep were shipped by Mr. Kendall.

OFFICE LOUISVILLE COURIER, FRIDAY EVEN'G, Jan. 4, 1861. Friday Even'o, Jan. 4, 1861. 3
To-day being the one set apart by the President as a day of humiliation and prayer, most of the business houses were closed, and nothing worthy of notice was done, there not being a single transaction of note. A portion of the banks, however, were open, and there was a good demand for money to meet the heavy payments falling due, but as far as we could learn they were all readily met with that promptness which has always characterized the business men of Louisville. Now that the much dreaded day is past, we hope that matters will begin to brighten up, and the prospects are that the present month will close on a very easy money market.—At the South the business is looming up, and our dispatches from there during the At the South the business is looming up, and our dispatches from there during the past day or two have quoted large sales and exports of cotton, being nearly as large as last season. The demand for produce and provisions here is increasing, and the shipments are large to fill Southern orders. By the close of another week business will in all probability assume a safe factory. n all probability assume a safe footing

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Jan. 2. COTTON—There was another good attendance of buyers yesterday, and notwithstanding the firmness of holders and the scarcity of desira bie offerings, the sales comprised 3,007 bales at full prices as follows:

Conx—The demand was moderate yesterday, and prices steady at former quotations. Sales from levee of 180 bags at 53¢, and 220 do at 52½ per bushel.

OATS—The market is well supplied, and the demand slow at 33@37½ in lots.

HAY—Market quiet with limited sales yesterday from levee at $22 for prime timothy, and $20 for inferior.

BACON—Sales in lots yesterday at 12½ for clear sides, and 8½ @3¢ for shoulders—the latter from store. Market dull.

BULK MEATS—We note a good demand at 7½ @3¢ for shoulders, and 8½ @3¢ for sides in lots from store.

The Gazette of this morning says: The Gazette of this morning says:

The receipt of hogs to-day were 15,000 head.

The market opened at an advance of 106,15¢, but this was subsequently lost, in part, as soon as the heavy receipts became known, but the trade closed steady at $5 7560 5 90. The sales as far as reported, comprised 3,000 head. Provisions were better, with an improved demand, Mess pork sold at $15 25 for good brands, and at close there were more buyers than sellers at this figure, dealers mostly asking $15 50 and upwards. Bulk meats were in good demand, closing at 5% 63% loose, for shoulders and sides. Green meats firm at 4% 65%, and 5% of 5% for shoulders, sides and hams. Lard was in good demand, and the market closed firm at 5% 610 for prime there and keg.

United States Cutter Captured! Reported Seizure of Fort Morgan!

LATER from SOUTH CAROLINA!

CHARLESTON, Jan. 4 .- I learn from gentleman who arrived here this morning from Savannah, that the forts are in the possession of the Georgia State troops. They are occupied by 150 men and an armorer, with twenty men engaged in cleaning the guns to render them serviceable. The State of Georgia has also taken possession of the United States Revenue Cutter on that station.

Governor Pickens has divided the duties of executive administration of South Carolina among his council thus: He appoints A. S. McGrath, Secretary of State, to regulate intercourse with other States and foreign powers, make treaties and regulate commerce and appoint consuls. D. T. Jamison, Secretary of War. C, G. Memminger, Secretary of the Treasury. W. H. Hurlee to regulate the Postal Department and Light Houses, and C. Garlinton, Secretary of the Interior, to attend to local matters, including the militia and coast policy.

SAVANNAH, Jan. 4 .- Fort Pulaski was yesterday taken possession of by the volunteers by order of Governor Brown. It is reported that the Revenue Cutter Dolphin has been taken possession of, but Governor Brown has issued orders for her release to the Government. It is generally believed that the secession ticket has carried the State.

MOBILE, Jan. 4.- The United States Ar senal was taken at daylight to-day, containing 7,800 stand of arms, 1,500 barrels of powder, 300,000 rounds of musket cartridges, and other munitions of war, by the troops of Mobile. No defense was Commercial business continues inactive, with not enough doing to afford quotations or give indications of change in the market. Coal is firm with an upward tendency. Foreign raw sugars are improved nominally bynews from China, but there are no transactions to establish an advance as yet; relined still slow of sale at 14½. Breadstuff operations suspended for lack of receipts, and buyers are retained from forcing the market by the complexion of the advices from New York and England. Freights are declining.—Money in fair supply, but mostly in demand to remit to the eastward. The Pony Express with St. Louis dates of December 4th, was received at San Francisco on the 20th. The President's Message entire was telegraphed from Saint Louis to Fort Kearney, where it overtook the pony on the 7th inst., and thus came through to Sacramento, arriving on the 18th. It was telegraphed thence to San Francisco by two lines, and immediately published in the Bulletin and Alts. The reading of the message and of the proceedings of Congress up to the 7th, tended to increase the anxiety of the people concerning the critical condition of the Union. The entire press of the State now takes a serious view of the secession movement, and favors the preservation of the Union, if possible, by mutual concessions. All the Republican papers advocate the repeal of the Personal Liberty bills of the Northern States. There is some talk of organizing a Pacific Republic if the South secedes, but the preservation of the vince the repeal of the Personal Liberty bills of the Northern States. Governor Jackson's Inaugural.

Er Louis, Jan. 4.—Governor Jackson's inaugural is alreast exclusively devoted to the discussion of Federal relegions. He says the destiny of the slaveholding States is identical, and Missouri will best consulter own interests, and the interests of the whole country, by a timely declaration of her determination to stand by her sister slaveholding States, in whose wrongs she participates, and with whose institutions and becobe she symmathizes. Missouri participates, and with whose institutions and people she sympathizes. Missouri will remain in the Union so long as there is a hope of maintaining the guarantees of the Constitution, but if the Northern States are determined to put the slaveholding States on a footing of inequality by preventing the entrance of slaves into the Territories, and by refusing to admit no more slave States into the Union, and by persisting in nullifying and perverting the Constitution in reference to slave property, then they themselves practically abandon the Union and cannot expect the South to submit to such 16-77-2 ment. The Governor opposes coercion, and sage that the project of maintaining the Government by force, maylead to a consolidated despotism but never to Union. Our Government is based upon justice and equality. Standing armickand recenary soldiers are subject to the will of the Eastern State will arouse a spirit which will result in the overthrow of the entire Federal system. The Governor has not may a sovered all hope for the preservation of the Union, but believes by prudence and well-directed efforts an adjustment, allke honorable to beth sections, may be effected. He opposes Gongressional controversies, and says the South can rely only on constitution alguarantees, and to effect this end he advises the calling of a Southern Convention to agree upon such amendments to the Constitution as would secure their just rights, and submit them to the Northern States for ther action. He also advises the calling of a State Convention to ascertain the will of the people on the subject. Turning to State matters the Governor advises a thorough organization of the militia to repel invasion and protect the property of citzens. He recommends legislation on the suspension of specie payment by the banks.

Detroit, Jan. 4.—Gov. Blair delivered his inaggural address to both Honses of the Legislature, as Jansing yesterday.

In discussing national affairs he denies the right of secession, and in aliuding to the present position of South Carolina, "artis: "If it could be properly done, I believe the country," "enerally would be willing to let that restless. "In that from the confederation forever, cannot be without admitting the right of secession to exist in all the States. This done, and no government remains to us but a voluntary association of States, dissolvable at the pleasure of any of them. If South Carolina may of right secede, then may New York and Louislana, thus cutting off the free right of way of the entire Nothwest to the ocean in both directions. The doctrine cannot be admitted; self-preservation, if no other reason, must compel us to resist this. He denies that the Personal Liberty bills have had the effect to prevent the execution of the Fugitive Slave law in a single instance, the Fagitive Slave law in a single instance, but whenever the appeal has been made to the court to enforce that law, it has been done in good faith.—He invites judicial scrutiny with the legislation of the State, and is willing to abide by the result, but is not willing to abide by the result, but is not willing that the State should be humilisted by a compliance with the demand to repeal these laws, accompanied by threats of violence and war. He concluded by recommending that at an early day the Legislature make it manifest to our Representative in Congress and to the country that Michigan is loyal to the Union, the Constitution, and the laws, and to proffer to the use of the United States the whole military power of the State for that purpose. Washington, Jan. 3.—A committee of Democrats from New York, headed by Moses Taylor, arrived here to-day. They have visited Seward to urge his approval of the compromise of Crittenden, but Seward don't see the thing in that light. The President said last night at eleven o'clock, that if Governor Wise's invaders visited the District to commit an assault, they must encounter ten companies of Federal troops.

The council of this city will on Monday pass orders to cooperate with the President in maintaining peace and security. The militia of the District are prepared to act with efficiency.

It is believed from what is known here that in the course of a few days, the forts at Pensacola and Key West, Fort Munroe and the fort at Ship Island, together with the arsenal at Baton Rouge, and Fort Johnson on the Cape Fear river, will be seized and garrisoned by the troops of the respective States in which they live.

Senator Toombs received a dispatch saying that the forts in Georgia were seized by order of Gov. Brown.

Private information says that, if any attempt be made to reinforce the arsenal at Augusta, or remove the arms, it will at once be seized.

The South Carolina Commissioners consider that the abrupt termination of their business by the President is so grossly insuling to themselves and State that they treat it as a declaration of war. In this spirit, they left here this morning, for South Carolina. It is said the President yesterday returned their note without comment.

It is not true, as reported, that Senator Biglier has sent dispatches to New York, saying that the national difficulties will be settled by the 10th of this month. These pretended dispatches were circulated in financial quarfers. The use of his name was without authority.

partitioned off into hostile nations by war or by purchase, and every foot of the country has acquired indefeasible and perpetual rights in every other part. The nation will never allow the keys of the continent on the ocean and the gulf shores to pass into the hands of an enemy. Nor can the maritime cities or States exist independently of the good will and support of the plantations and farming communities of the interior, and though we should assent to unnatural and treasonable separation, the generations that succeed us would contend for centuries to recover their rights, till conquest or aunihilation ends the struggle; but no such result can follow, as the distruction of the American Government.
